¹On November 3, 2009 Maine voters passed a referendum that would require the Department of Health and Human Services to establish a state registry. The referendum must now go before the legislature and will likely be amended before it becomes law.

²Maine does not have a state registry, and information does not need to be submitted to the state. In addition to having a debilitating a condition, a to qualify, a physician, in the context of a bona fide patient-physician relationship must: discuss with the patient the possible health risks and therapeutic or palliative benefits of the medical use of marijuana; provide the person with the physician's professional opinion concerning the possible balance of risks and benefits of the medical use of marijuana; advise the patient that they might benefit for the medical use of marijuana. The patient must disclose to the physician the person's medical use of marijuana; and the person is under the continuing care of the physician.

³Medical marijuana can be used to treat persistent nausea, vomiting, wasting syndrome or loss of appetite that results from AIDS, AIDS treatment, or chemotherapy or radiation therapy used to treat cancer.

⁴Must be associated with a chronic, debilitating disease or its treatment.

⁵Allows for a conviction that occurs after the effective date of the act, that is for a violation of federal law related to possession or sale of marijuana that is authorized under the act.

⁶Provides that an individual will not be disqualified from serving as a primary caregiver if the individual has demonstrated to the Commissioner of the Department of Health and Senior Services clear and convincing evidence of rehabilitation. When making a determination, requires the Commissioner to consider: the nature and responsibility of the position which the convicted individual would hold, has held, or currently holds; the nature and seriousness of the crime or offense; the circumstances under which the crime or offense occurred; the date of the crime or offense; the age of the individual when the crime or offense was committed; whether the crime or offense was an isolated or repeated incident; any social conditions which may have contributed to the commission of the crime or offense; and any evidence of rehabilitation, including good conduct in prison or in the community, counseling or psychiatric treatment received, acquisition of additional academic or vocational schooling, successful participation in correctional work-release programs, or the recommendation of those who have had the individual under their supervision.

⁷In New Jersey, home growth is prohibited and physicians are required to provide written instructions for the total amount of usable marijuana a treatment center may dispense to a patient in a 30 day period. The maximum amount that may be dispensed in a 30 day period is two ounces.

⁸Individuals who have been convicted of a felony drug offense may not serve as a caregiver, unless the Department of Health waives this restriction for a specific individual. Additionally the Department of Health is required to allow a person to serve as a primary caregiver if the Department determines the offense was for conduct that occurred prior to the enactment of Rhode Island's medical marijuana legislation, or that the person was prosecuted by an authority other than the state for acts that are protected by Rhode Island's medical marijuana statutes .

⁹Patients must submit a verification sheet stating: that a "bona fide doctor-patient relationship" defined as, a treating or consulting relationship of not less than six months duration, in the course of which a physician has completed a full assessment of the registered patient's medical history and current medical condition, including a personal physical examination, exists between the patient and the physician; the debilitating medical condition is of recent or sudden onset and the patient has not had a previous physician who is able to verify the nature of the disease and its symptoms; a statement that reasonable medical efforts have been made over a reasonable amount of time without success to relieve the symptoms; that the patient has a debilitating medical condition; and physician contact information.
